91 YEAR-OLD NATIVE AMERICAN ART COLLECTOR AND HISTORIAN
BRINGS WORLD RENOWNED COLLECTION TO PEABODY MUSEUM

The Irma Bailey Native American Arts and Crafts Show and Sale

Stories behind the Stones, Oct 11-14, 2007

The Peabody Museum, one of the oldest museums in the world devoted to anthropology and ethnology, will again host Irma Bailey and her renowned collection of Native American art and artifacts. This year's Irma Bailey Show and Sale will be held from Thursday, October 11 through Sunday, October 14, 2007. Now in its 27th year at the Peabody Museum, Irma Bailey's Native American art collection is filled with exquisite pieces of Irma's contemporary and traditional Hopi, Zuni, Pueblo, and Navaho silver and turquoise jewelry, as well as pottery, baskets and rugs.

This year, Irma shares The Stories behind the Stones, adding context and depth to these individual treasures. Irma Bailey has made it part of her personal mission to bring the best of Native American reservation art and crafts to the greater Boston area with this event at the Peabody Museum in Cambridge.

The Peabody Museum is located at 11 Divinity Ave., Cambridge, MA and is open daily from 9:00 am-5:00pm. This event is free to the public. For directions or further information about the Peabody Museum please call 617-496-1027 or visit their web site at <http://www.peabody.harvard.edu/>.
