

Tuesday, November 12, 6:00 pm

Panel Discussion and Reception

FOOD, BIODIVERSITY, AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Jade D'alpoim Guedes, Harvard Anthropology Ph.D. '13

Eli Rogosa, Director of the Heritage Grain Conservancy

Richard Meadow, Director, Zooarchaeology Lab, Peabody Museum

GEOLOGICAL LECTURE HALL
24 Oxford Street, Cambridge, MA

Reception follows in the Peabody Museum Galleries

For more information, visit:
www.hmsc.harvard.edu

Photos: © Eli Rogosa. All Rights Reserved

Explore the genetic, agricultural, and culinary history of humankind's staple food—millet and wheat. Learn about the significant differences between ancient and modern wheat varieties and why the ancient varieties may be a more effective food source as the planet faces unprecedented climate change.

- Peabody Museum of Archaeology & Ethnology
- Harvard Museum of Natural History
- Harvard Museums of Science & Culture

