(Cambridge, February 26, 2009) The Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology presents a lecture by award-winning author Nathaniel Philbrick, Starting at Standing Rock: Following Custer and Sitting Bull to the Little Big Horn. In June of 2007, Philbrick traveled to the Standing Rock Sioux Agency in North Dakota to research an upcoming book about the Battle of the Little Big Horn. Over the next two weeks, he ventured up the Missouri River to Fort Lincoln, home to General George Custer’s Seventh Cavalry, and then followed Custer’s route more than three hundred miles to the Little Bighorn National Monument in Crow Agency, Montana. In this illustrated lecture about his trip, Philbrick, who is known for his bestselling books about maritime topics, will talk about the challenges of moving from the sea to the American West as well as the unexpected importance that photographs and native artwork have had in shaping his understanding of the battle and its participants.

About Nathaniel Philbrick

After graduate school, Philbrick worked for four years at Sailing World magazine. He was a freelancer for a number of years, during which time he wrote and edited several sailing books, including Yaahting: A Parody (1984). After moving to Nantucket in 1986, he became interested in the history of the island and wrote Away Off Shore: Nantucket Island and Its People. He was offered the opportunity to start the Egan Maritime Institute in 1995, and in 2000 he published In the Heart of the Sea, followed by Sea of Glory and Mayflower. He is presently at work on a book about the Battle of Little Big Horn.
